It is possible to use the “dayclocks agenda” app with several people. Then everyone uses the same account.

However, be aware that someone else may have already put something on it. It is a good idea to synchronize the calendar before adding or removing an activity yourself. You can sync the data by swiping the screen down from the top of the app's calendar view. A "star" is briefly displayed. After that, the calendar is synced and you can see what someone else has done.

An account you created yourself (demo account) is only intended for a demo of the app. This does not work with the supplied DayClock, for this you must use the account that we have made available to you.
